The work stoppages came on top of a nationwide truckers' strike which started 20 days ago and has strangled Britain's supply lines and forced the layoff of about 170,000 workers.

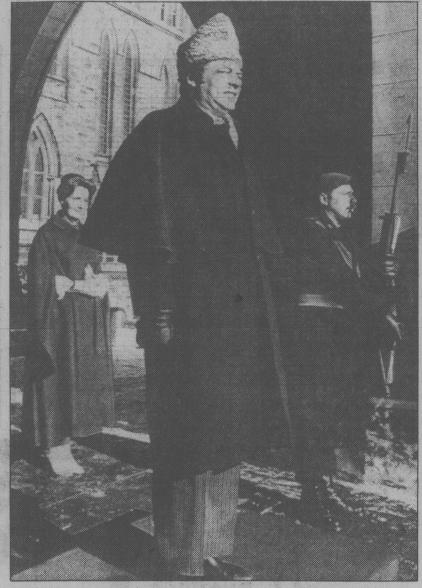

A few workers went on strike Sunday, refusing to salt and sand icy roads. Po-lice said the roads caused at least 100 driving accidents and seven fatalities.

Among those striking today were school care-takers and cooks, garbagemen, gravediggers, road re pair workers, public bath and lavatory attendants, drain cleaners, municipal airport workers and hospital porters, orderlies and laun-

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Carter set a record today with a $122.7-billion military muscle-build-ing budget which includes a financial push for a new mobile long-range missile de-Soviet surprise attack.

Carter's fiscal 1980 budget proposal would increase de fence spending by $10.8 bil-

And there are controver-sial cuts in jobs programs and a freezing of other programs for states and cities that are certain to cause Carter problems within his own Democratic party.

The biggest dollar increase in the budget is for defence. The outlay of $122.7 billion is up $10.8 billion from 1979, an increase of more than three per cent even after discounting for the effects of inflation.

Among the sharpest cuts are 160,000 public service jobs for a savings of $535 million. Some trimming of social security programs is proposed to reduce outlays by $600 million in 1980 and $1.7 billion in 1981

The budget, which totals $531.6 billion, sets aside $2.5 billion to be paid to workers as inflation insurance, if Congress approves. There would be a 1980 deficit of $29 billion, down from $37.4 billion this year.

Carter said the budget, which is for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, empha-sizes spending restraint and fighting inflation and makes "the federal dollar work harder and better."

"We must reduce the growth of total federal spending while protecting the security of our nation and the well-being of the American people," Carter said in a message to Con-

But the president did not repeat his past promises to balance the budget by 1981, saying only he will "achieve a balanced budget as soon as economic conditions permit." The 1980 deficit will be the 19th in the last 20 years

However, Carter said the average rate of increase in federal spending was 12.1 per cent from 1973 through 1978 but only 7.7 per cent in his 1980 budget — and only 0.7 per cent after discountper-cent inflation rate during the fiscal year.

Congress, which has its own budget-making proce-dures, may make substantial changes in the adminis-tration's spending proposals before finally approving a 1980 budget. However, the new Congress is expected to be more conservative than the last and it seems unlikely it will add significant-

For the country, the board's industrial outlook is similar to most other forecasts, calling for difficulty in the manufacturing sector resulting from the anticipated slowdown in the U.S. economy. The growth of manufac-turing output will fall to four per cent from the 6.5 per cent recorded in 1978, the board says.

However, other goods-producing industries such as mining, fishing, forestry and construction will register slightly better performances this year than in 1978. Major reasons for the anticipated improvement are an expected increase in allowable petroleum imports, better world prices for metals and fewer labor difficulties in these sectors.

Israelis Tipped Sadat To Plot?

NEW YORK (AP) - The Israeli government alerted Egypt to a Libyan plot to assassinate Egyptian Presi-dent Anwar Sadat, thus helping to forge contacts be-tween Egypt and Israel that resulted in Sadat's peace overtures, a report in the New York Times magazine Sunday said.

In July, 1977, Israeli intelligence had discovered that Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, interested in dominating the Arab world had organized a team to kill Sadat in Cairo, American columnist Sidney Zion and Israel journalist «Uri Dan wrote.

The discovery resulted from the worldwide Israeli observation of the Palistine Liberation Organization activities and the Khadafy as sassination squad was reported to be composed of Palestinians, Zion and Dan

Their article in the Times magazine reported that Israeli intelligence men, wondering how to dispose of the information, conferred with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Begin, who had been in office less than a month, examined a thick file detailing the plot against Sadat.

Begin's predecessors, he was told, had channelled intelligence tips concerning Arab countries through the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. But this time Begin decided things would be done differently, the article

"Why don't you give this (the file) to the Egyptians," Begin told the shocked inteligence officers.

Sadat was interested in a positive follup and asked Morocco's King Hassan to organize a secret meeting of top-level Egyptian and Israeli emissaries.

A meeting was held be tween representatives of the two countries on Sept. 16, 1977, with Israel Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan representing Begin. Dayan returned to Jerusalem after the meeting with the news that Sadat wanted to meet

Compulsory Service Urged in Canada

Times News Services

EDMONTON - Major-General Richard Rohmer, novelist and commander of Canada's military reserves, said over the weekend the country should consider compulsory military service.

A period of national service "as part of the price of being a citizen, would not be a bad thing for young people," Rohmer told a news conference.

Rohmer, a soldier and author of several best-selling political novels, said Canada's regular forces are "badly over-tasked" and could accomodate "a com-pulsory plan," though such a deci-sion "would be a matter for our parliamentarians in their perceptive wisdom.

"Outdated equipment — some of it older than the people who operate it — makes it difficult to maintain the interest of young reservists," he said. A high turnover rate was the result.

He also said he is studying a contract scheme between em-ployers and the federal government under which employees serving as reservists would receive an extra income tax deduc-

Rohmer said Canada is a society that has "rarely coerced anybody to do anything, not even in war-time — that's why a period of national service would not be a bad thing for your Canada is a." bad thing for young Canadians.'

Rohmer also said that for more mature members of the reserves there is no guarantee that employers will hold their jobs for them if they are called to duty

He said that United States employers are forced by law to save a job for a national guardsman.

He said he is exploring a contract between the government and employers under which employers would receive an income tax deduction equal to the salary of a reservist who was called to duty.

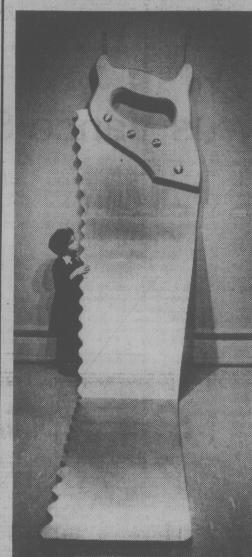

He said that of the Canadian Forces' regular strength of 80,000, 5,000 are stationed in Europe, 1,-000 in the Middle East and 600 on Cyprus. In addition, 4,000 are committed to Norway in the event of a military alert in Europe These commitments mean there is little margin available before the reserves would be mobilized.

On the role of women in the forces, Rohmer said that he does not see women "in the front end of things." Women can do "far better jobs than the men" in some non-combat roles.

Still Another Bumbler

Former federal Conservative leader Robert Stanfield became discouragingly well-known for his inability to kick footballs. Former U.S. President Gerald Ford won a worldwide reputation for his tendency to fall down a lot: Now it appears current Tory leader Joe Clark may also have joined the ranks of politicians whose names are automatically associated in of Clark's meeting with the Indian the public mind with that disparaging word, "bumbler.

Clark has acquired this reputation in a 12-day, round-the-world, whirlwind tour in which he visited four countries, met with the leaders of each of them, missed myriad airplane connections, left luggage scattered from one end of the globe to the other, almost created a diplomatic incident between Israel and Jordan, and almost got wounded by a bayonet held by a Canadian soldier.

The Tories are, understandably, upset with the coverage the Clark tour received in the Canadian media. They complain that Clark's meetings with leaders in eros hide, a ski from an ice-Japan, India, Israel and Jordan skate

This perception of the media coverage is generally correct. It was much easier to find stories of the unfortunate incident with the bayonet than it was to find stories prime minister. But whether this coverage was unfair is quite another question.

The Tories put the stories of bumbling and ineptitude into the same category as the widespread reproduction of pictures of Stanfield trying to kick footballs and Ford on skis. However, they are overlooking an important differ-

On the other hand, the ability to organize and to find staff members who can organize is important to the leader of a government. It is a nerve-wracking thought that we might leave the organization of an institution as massive and expensive as the federal government to a group of people who couldn't organize a 12-day world tour.

For it was made quite clear that at the root of Clark's tour troubles was a lack of organization. The organizers couldn't tell reliable airlines from unreliable ones (who, for instance, had even heard of Egypt Air until Clark decided to fly it from Japan to India?), couldn't work out reasonable schedules, couldn't allocate time well enough to allow some for eating and sleeping.

The whole thing seemed to leaders are not of the slightest have been planned by a group of neophytes from the Amateur Hour. # How Cyrus Vance Sees It

WASHINGTON — The main problem of U.S. foreign policy in 1979, as Secretary of State Cyrus Vance sees it, is to hold a fair balance in Washington's east-west relations, and particularly to hold the western alliance together and somehow maintain an even-handed Washington policy to-ward both China and the Soviet

Vance concedes that this will not be easy. He is eager to establish normal diplomatic and commercial relations the rising anti-Soviet mood in congress and in American public opinion, and is trying to puzzle out how to compose these foreign, domestic and public relations problems in the com-

Vance is the quiet and cautious member of the Carter cabinet — skeptical of big splashy concept of world affairs. He is a lawyer, who deals with one problem at a time, always trying to mediate and compromise between the contesting forces at home and abroad — infinitely patient and cour-teous, with a shrewd sense of what he can and cannot do.

Go Its Own Way

For example, right or wrong, Vance doesn't think Washington can do very much about the crisis in Iran. As he sees it, this is not essentially a political government-to-government problem, but a social and even reli-gious problem Washington cannot resolve. It has troubling military strategic problems at the source of Iran's petroleum power, which affects the industrial and even the developing world, but Vance doesn't think the United States can determine the outwhether it recommends that the shah of Iran stay in Tehran or

Likewise, Vance is sad and even pessimistic about the stalemate between Israel and Egypt, about the possibilities of a compromise in the of a compromise over the Sinai, the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

Accordingly, Washington is turning away from the puzzles of Sadat and Begin, which have preoccupied this city for so long, and it is even turning away from the struggles in Iran, which seem beyond Washington's control. Officials here are now turning back to their relations with the NATO alliance, Moscow, Peking and

At the western summit meeting in Guadeloupe in the Caribbean, Prime Minister James Callaghan of Britain, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany and President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France all supported Carter's "normalization" of U.S. relations with the Chinese government in Peking.

But at the same time, they told Carter that they were worried about the growing anti-Soviet propaganda in the United states, and asked him what would happen in the United States and western Europe if this led to the rejection of a U.S.-Soviet sec-ond strategic arms agreement and a revival of the arms race and the cold

It was for this reason that the leaders of Britain, West Germany and France, who had little to say to the press at Guadeloupe, nevertheless went on television to make clear that they wanted a SALT II agreement between the United States and the soviet Union, and thought this was in the security intersts of the Western European nations

Vance is not only worried about getting a second strategic arms agreement with the Soviet Union through the Senate of the United States, but also that congress can be persuaded to give the Soviet Union the same commercial and trade concessions it is likely to give to China.

This is likely to be one of the most critical issues in the new congress, now assembled in Washington. It is possibilities of a compromise in the Middle East. As he sees it, the longer Sadat and Begin fuss over the details of Article IV or Article VI of the Camp David compromise, the more Camp David compromise, the more Williams they will miss the chance competition with Japanese, German, French and British companies.

One of the major disputes between the western leaders in Guadeloupe was the British decision to sell modern military fighter planes to Peking West German chancellor Schmidt, was worried about the effect of all this on western political relations with Moscow. Why provoke the Russian bear? he asked

All this has had some effect on Carter's foreign policy aides, par-ticularly Vance. He is privately wor-ried about the tendency in the U.S. to "poke the stick" at the Soviet bear. He goes even further and says that he didn't become secretary of state in order to revive the vicious conflict of the old U.S.-Soviet "cold war," and "resign tomorrow" thought this was the way things were

Mediate with Moscow

Looking forward to the new year, therefore, Vance is arguing for some balance in Washington's relations with both the Soviet Union and China. He wants to see the second strategic arms treaty with the Soviet Union signed, and ratified by the U.S. Senate. And particularly, he wants to see President Brezhnev come to the United States, not only to sign that agreement, but to discuss with Carter, before it is too late, why these two major nuclear powers cannot come to terms in keeping the peace elsewhere in the world

Carter was trying in private mes-sages to Brezhnev to raise this question. Why are Washington and Moscow at odds over Iran, Cambodia, the Middle East and southern Africa? Can we not, he asked, at least talk about these things? Vance, the mediator in this city, has been promoting this theme. His view is that whatever we do in Cuba, or in Namibia, or even in China — important as these things are — cannot be more important than trying to compose the differences be tween the two major powers, in Washington and Moscow, who could blow up mounting deficit.

Fine Tribute to Jules Leger

OTTAWA — Creation of a senior scholarship to study the role of the monarchy and the governor-general in honor of Jules Leger and his wife shows a sensitivity and grace that is rare but welcome in government.

The fact that after the controversy over the monarchy touched off last spring by the proposed constitutional amendments it also may serve some political purpose does not really detract from the merits of the idea.

the stroke that struck Leger soon after he took office prevented him from fulfilling the duties of governorgeneral in the traditional way and as well as he would have liked. That is undoubtedly true but it has always seemed to me that he did something of

After one of the most cruel physical fates that can befall a man, he carried on with courage and fortitude. Other men who have suffered strokes have done the same but many have not, giving in to their affliction instead. The great difference in Leger's case was that his office made his courage a very conspicuous exammany other victims in their inevitable moments of discouragement.

Fought Back Hard

For many Canadians who have been victims of strokes Leger's brave example may have been of much greater value than routine fulfillment of the full range of a governor-general's duties would have been for the rest of the country.

He was one of two well-known
Ottawa figures who set this sort of example at the same time. The other was the lion-hearted Ed Ritchie, under-secretary of state for external affairs who suffered an even more ferocious stroke than Leger. His example was less well-known than Leger's because his office was less conspicuous but he too made a determined fight for recovery with the same sort of stubborn courage.

Like the governor-general's, his recovery was partial and he was never able to resume the duties of under-secretary. He did, however, win back a sufficient degree of health to have become a useful ambassador again.

While the governor-general could not pick up the full range of his duties and was greatly assisted by Madame Leger in those he could perform, he was by no means inactive. After his recovery, he continued to travel but, perhaps more important, he turned Rudeau Hall into the centre of a good many discussion groups in which varied individuals were brought together.

It was an interesting development which brought many ordinary people into closer contact with the vice-regal level of our affairs than would otherwise have been likely. The colloquia which he sponsored at Rideau Hall were valuable events of a sort that probably would not otherwise have

When the effort got underway to arrange that a biography should be written of a very distinguished but not Norman Robertson, Leger took an active interest in the project. Robertson had held many of the top official jobs in the government's service, including that of under-secretary at external affairs, ambassador in Washing ton, high commissioner in London and so on.

He was a brilliant man with a strange quirk: he detested putting his thoughts on paper, greatly preferring to express them in conversation. This a trait that does not make a future biographer's job easier and when old colleagues decided that his life story should be told their first problem was to find out whether there was enough material available to make it practi-

As an ambassador, and in com-municating, with fellow diplomats from Ottawa, he could hardly avoid putting a certain amount on paper and this proved to be one of the possible fields to be mined. But there are also still living many people who knew

Robertson well and who had worked with them. To aid the project, the governor-general drew a large group of them together for an all-day session at Rideau Hall last winter to reminisce about him for the benefit of the historian, J.L. Granatstein, who had taken the job on. It was the sort of interest and practical consideration that marked Leger's tenure at Government House.

Madame Leger brought vigor, her role at Government House, a role that her husband's misfortunes with health made more important than that of other wives of governors general. People within the surprisingly large and expanding circle who were from time to time invited to the functions at Government House developed an admiration and fondness for Madame Leger which was inspired by her own qualities.

Since the decision was taken to name Canadians to the role of representing the Queen as Canadian head of state, this country has been fortunate in the men and women who have taken up residence at Rideau Hall.

Leger Scholarship

The governors-general have been very different types — the differences between, say, Vincent Massey and Roland Michener were considerable, as were those between Georges Vanier and Jules Leger. They all handled the post with a distinction that today makes one wonder why it took governments so long to get rid of the idea that the sovereign's representative in Canada should be from Great Britain. That idea was a colonial hangover that took too long to die and it was a service to the country when the tradition was broken.

Probably because the governor-general is a representative and not a head of state in his own right, Canadians often tend to take the office for granted. Each of the Canadians who has held the post has tried in his own way to give it greater reality and meaning for other Canadians and this is an important part of the incum-

Jules Leger's health prevented him from doing it as fully as the others in the ways that had become conventional but it did not prevent him fom doing it in different ways. It is pleasant that a worthwhile scholarship has been established in his honor, and that of his wife, because the courage with which he approached his duties deserves continuing recognition. And the prime minister deserves credit for a perceptive way of establishing that

Need an Overpass

There is a great deal of concern and discussion over the newly-formed highway, the Blanshard extension, which is Vernon Avenue, and Seymour

There has been little forethought in constructing a highway without an overpass or underpass when we have four buildings nearby — Battin-Fielding, Nigel House, Garth Homer Achievement Centre and Army and Navy apartments — that house the elderly and handicapped.

There should be the same consideration given to these people as was given when an overpass was con-structed on the Trans-Canada High-way at Helmcken Road. We see no reason why this can't be done with these two roads. Hopefully this will meet with understanding and thoughtful consideration. — Elly Bowerman, Manager, Physically Handicapped Action Committee Society, 521-620 View Street.

Propaganada Mush

It is maintained by the socialists that we are all owners of the natural resources. They belong to the people, they say, and when they become the ruling class, i.e. the government, they will buy back with the peoples' credit those resources for the people in the name of the Crown.

This is then interpreted to mean that we will all feel better off (if they don't tell you that you are being seen off), because they will be using your taxes to pay for the long term borrowings used to gain control for you, and the people may never know what it really cost you to become psuedo-owners through the ruling class of workers, now become controllers and managers of the people's property.

No wonder the NDP regurgitates when it sees the people being given their ownerhsip back as shareholders, no matter how small. Most people are fed up with pink propaganda mush that socialism gives the people control of their resources by putting them under nationalized boards and chair-manships heavily dominated or manoeuvred by government, who soon drop the humility of the term "workfor ruler.

The socialists if they were really honest with the people should jump with joy when they see the people receive share ownership in their resources. Some say it's political, because the Social Credit government is giving shares to the people. Nonsense—they are not giving anything, we are rather picking up what already belongs to us, instead of shares being held on my behalf by some government board or agency, I'll now have my own. — John D. Tisdalle, R.R. 3, Victoria.

Stay Out of Rain

Like a teacher giving apples to all his pupils, Premier Bill Bennett's la-test offer of gifts to all good voters is so transparent it is an insult. Have all the taxpayers been guilty of coveting their own property up until now? Willy only needs public support (he claims), to successfully fight CPI's takeover of MacMilan Bloedel, so he gives all the citizens shares in BCRIC to make sure he gets their support. He then says the government will not buy control of Mac-Blo, because the shareholders will now make all decisions. Then he says BCRIC should not buy control of Mac-Blo or CPI because they would not create any new jobs. Confusion and double-talk reigns as usual.

Just how does Billy feel that the shareholders of BCRIC stock can control their own destiny if the government is concurrently telling them just what they can or can't do with it?

Is this also the latest form of Socred-approved legal gambling being introduced to the lucky citizens? This government seems to put a lot of stock in any and every form of encouraging chance riches. Do they really feel that this is the surest way to the voters' hearts? Or is this a political payoff to the stockbrokers? This latest move by the Socreds may take care of the apathy, but it will simply be chan-nelled into fresh, renewed and strengthened cynicism. As an election draws nearer, we can expect presents and appeasements raining from the Socreds as profusely as April showers in a wetter than average spring. Well as long as we don't let the moisture short-circuit our brains, it should all be over before too much harm is done. Joan Bittorf, 1673 Davie Street.

fered the first strong evidence for the existence of gravity waves has intensified efforts to detect them directly in laboratories from Peking to Moscow and Rome to Australia.

The new findings created a sensation last month when they were announced at an international conference on astrophysics in Munich. The evidence is indirect, based on observations of a far-away pulsar and its companion by radio astronomers from the University of Massachusetts in Am-

The direct detection of gravitational waves would be a historic step toward fulfilling the dream of several generations of scientists who have been seeking to bring all laws of nature — and the phenomena that derive therefrom — into a comprehensive and rational framework.

Einstein, in the General Theory of Relativity, which he developed during the First World War, described gravity as a distortion of the four-dimensional geometry of space and time. He concluded that gravity, particularly when it is very strong — as it is near the sun — would bend space and slow time. Because of these effects, he predicted that stars seen beyond the sun during an eclipse would seem to be out of place. This would occur, in part, because their light rays would follow curved lines near the sun, and because time there would run more slowly, causing additional bending.

The latter effect is analogous to that which makes a rowboat's oar appear bent where it enters the water in a lake. In that case, the effect results from a slowing of the speed of light in the water, rather than a slowBy WALTER SULLIVAN New York Times

Einstein's predictions based on these two effects were confirmed in a 1919 eclipse, and time-slowing by gravity has recently been more directly observed in a variety of experiments.

However, Einstein's theory also implied that gravity would have fea-tures in common with light and other electromagnetic phenomena. According to the theory, gravity should have properties characteristic of waves and of particles called gravitons. The graviton, a theoretical concept that has, sumed to complete the analogy with light, which consists of particles moving in a wave-like manner.

As gravity waves pass, according to the theory, they cause a distortion of local geometry. The most powerful of them would be generated by extreme gravitational events, such as the col apse of a star or cyclic gravity-field fluctuations resulting from the rotation of massive asymmetric bodies or pairs of bodies, such as the pulsar and its companion monitored by the Massachusetts astronomers.

As the waves pass earth, they would very subtly distort everything on the planet, including the earth, producing a slight "jiggle," for example, in the distance from the earth to the moon. It is the search for these kinds of effects that is now under way worldwide.

The experiments are being conducted in various ways — with bars of sapphire crystal, with magnetically levitated cylinders and multiply-

tions in the disk

reflected laser beams. All these approaches require levels of measure ment precision that challenge existing

The efforts at direct detection of gravitational waves are, to varying degrees, descendents of those con-ducted at the University of Maryland for a number of years by Dr. Joseph Weber. He has reported the discovery of such waves, but his results have never been accepted as convinc

The researcher's approach is to look for a change in the shape of the detecting system as a gravity wave passes though it. Weber's detectors were aluminum cylinders suspended in a vacuum to isolate them from all local influences. At the University of Western Australia, Dr. David Blair is experimenting with a specially an-nealed cylinder made of niobium, supercooled and suspended magnetic-

The method is a variation of one developed by Blair and others at Louisiana State University. In that approach, an aluminum cylinder is coated with a niobium-titanium alloy that, at extremely low temperature, be-comes superconducting. Having thus lost all resistance to electricity, it responds strongly to a magnetic field, which levitates it and isolates it from vibration. Similar approaches are being followed at the University of Rome and at Stanford University.

In their efforts to detect gravity waves, Dr. David H. Douglass, at the University of Rochester, and Dr. Vladimir Braginsky, at the University of Moscow, are using bars of sapphire crystal or silicon that are a foot or two long. The bars, Dr. Douglass explained last week, should "ring" for an excep-tionally long time after the passage of a gravity wave, making the effect easier to detect.

It is believed the bars should be sensitive to gravity waves in the fre quency range from 1,000 to 10,000 cycles per second — those expected from the collapse of a star.

The efforts to use laser systems to detect gravity waves are, in part, the outgrowth of work by Dr. Rainer Weiss, professor of physics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The laser beam is reflected between mirror systems and the researcher attempts to detect very slight changes in its path.

This approach, also being followed in Munich, at the University of Glas-gow in Scotand and in China, should, according to Douglass, be sensitive to waves from a collapsing star and to those of lower frequency from an even larger-scale event

At the University of Tokyo, an attempt is being made to detect 60-cycle gravity waves, those expected from the spin of a pulsar that is at the heart of the Crab Nebula. It spins 30 times a second and therefore, if asymmetrical, should generate gravity waves at the control of the transport of the control o twice that frequency.

About half of the proposed development will be left as open space, he said. The development would be

Fruit of the Sea: The Winter Oyster

About this time in the winsigns that spring is a mea-surable distance over the horizon. One of these inti-mations is a daytime low tide. The saltchuck, which since late October has re-ceded from the beaches only at night, ebbs away from the drift-log line. Flats that have not been exposed for months to sunlight lie wetly

When that happens, Win and I drop whatever engages us, stow rubber boots and a bucket in our car, and set out to look for one of nature's tastiest gifts to man.

This is the winter oyster. Through most of the year, any oyster is a worthy bi-valve, whether slurped off the half shell, stewed or fried with butter and breadcrusts. From July through September — a shorter span in a cool summer — the spawn bloated oyster is harvested only by the undiscriminating tourist. But when ite oyster flat on a grey day the water chills, when the frost bites and the snow without horizon. A stilt-flies, the oyster comes to its peerless prime.

It is then a delight to the taste buds. Firm, not a trace of flab on its grey, black-bordered person. Non-fishy. But flavored with the salt and bracing essence of the

There was a time during the heyday of an oystering industry based on imported seed from Japan when al-most any flat offered a wealth of oysters for the picking.

Due to ruthless gathering, the ravages of starfish and the vagaries of oyster reproduction, such bonanzas are now few and far between. It is only by diligent searching that Win and I have found a flat or two that will yield oysters enough for our needs. It follows that none of

To the unaccustomed eye, an oyster in its habitat looks uncommonly like a rough and barnacled shard of rock. We roved on, blind at first to the riches surrounding us. Then Win stooped for our first oyster. Its ruggedly-crusted shell was about four inches long, which made it a preferred size for gourmet

With the scales lifted from our eyes, we began to spot oysters all around us. We garnered a couple of dozen, which was ample for our needs though well under a

It was still winter, never fear, and in our bucket was winter's choicest gift. Fruit of the sea, the poetic-mind-ed French call shellfish. As applied to the winter oyster, the term is deserved.

We lugged our trove home. Unlike the clam, the oyster requires no scouring of its innards in a salt-water bath. Its serrated shell guards its bracing juices jealously until the blade of an oyster knife picks the lock.

Shucking oysters is a job best done outdoors. I opened ours, leaving a dozen of the smaller ones on the half-shell for a pre-dinner cocktail to be served with a sauce into which goes kechup, horse-radish, lemon juice,

erry Does It His Way in Bowl Win

MIAMI (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, who so often has seen other National Football League quarterbacks des-troyed in the Super Bowl, used the championship game as a personal showcase Sunday, firing four touchdown passes and lead-ing Pittsburgh Steelers to a 35-31 victory over Dallas Cowboys.

Bradshaw passed for a career-high 318 yards and was a unanimous choice as the game's most valuable play-er. He constructed the victory much the way he had moved the Steelers to the NFL's best record this sea-

"I went in deciding to do what I had done best all year," said the Steelers quarterback. As the American Football Conference's leading passer, he threw for an NFL high 28 touch-downs.

"I was going to play this game my way, win or lose,"

The result was the most exciting game in the 13-year history of the Super Bowl series, as Bradshaw staged a brilliant passing duel with Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach. Both men finished with identical passing fig-ures—17 completions in 30

The Cowboys couldn't control Bradshaw's air game.

If Noll and the Steelers thought Dallas was finished at that point, Bradshaw certainly didn't. And Staubach almost pulled off a come-back, throwing for two touchdowns in the final 21/2 minutes before running out "With 6:38 to play, the guys thought we had it won and started celebrating," said Bradshaw. "That made me mad. I knew how danger-ous Roger could be. I could see us getting 35 points and losing the Super Bowl. That would have been terrible." Trailing 21-14 in the third period, Dallas drove to the Steelers' 10-yard line. On third down with three yards to go, Staubach called a timeout and huddled with coach Tom Landry. They chose the right play — a pass to veteran tight end Jackie he said. "The ball was be-Smith, who was wide open in

He broke a tackle by Cowboys' cornerback Aaron Kyle, got a block from Swann and sprinted down the middle of the field, completing the 75-yard TD play. That tied a yard TD play. That tied a Super Bowl record set in 1971 by Johnny Unitas and John Mackey of Baltimore.

After Roy Gerela had a 51-yard field-goal attempt strike the crossbar and bounce away, the Steelers soon had seven — this time on Bradshaw's third TD pass of the game — a sevenyarder to Rocky Bleier.

Early success has been recorded, but Don Ward doesn't think he will be the Messiah to lead Seattle Breakers out of the Western Hockey League wilderness. For one thing, he doesn't plan to hang around after this season ends.

The club changed coaches last week, replacing Les Calder with Ward. The switch produced immediate results: a 7-5 victory over New Westminster Bruins on Friday and a come-from-behind 5-5 tie with Victoria Cougars at Memorial Arena on Saturday.

The bubble burst Sunday. Bruins atoned for Friday's jolt by defeating the Breakers 6-5 in New Westminster. It was a result that Ward predicted, if you wanted to read between the lines of his conversation after Satur-

LEON HALL TAKES SHAMROCK POST

Leon Hall, a long-time club executive, has been named general manager of Victoria Shamrocks Fred Wooster, president of the Western Lacrosse Association team, announced the appointment Satur-day and said Skip Chapman, who filled the office last season following the death of Norm Kowalyk, would femain as a director. Hall, who has been statistician, scorekeeper and director of game officials, will be assisted by Mason Sheldrick, who has been with the team since it start-ed and served as treasurer for many years.

Wooster, who was elected to a second term last week, also said there would be a decision on who would coach the team within the next 10 days. Nirmal Dillon, who took Shamrocks to the league champion ship and Mann Cup final last year, has indicated he is interested in retaining the position.

Other Irish executive members retaining posi-tions are treasurer Bruce Fennell, secretary Cliff Newman and past-president Chris Randall.

To Maeda, it was the last straw in what he argued was a too tightly refereed match, and he pulled his team off the floor.

"Both teams were given pretty bad calls, not only one team," said Maeda, who came from Japan last year to coach the nationals, "In Japan or Korea, we don't get calls like that in a friendly tournament.

Our rates are a pleasant surprise!

At Tilden, it's our policy for every station to have its rates printed and displayed—because we don't want you to think that we charge what the traffic will bear!

Also, we think it's gimmicky to feature absurd come-on' prices when the real cost ends up being the kind of surprise you don't need—once you've figured it out! What we feature is what you pay!

So next time you need wheels, get them with no gimmicks—from Tilden. And as we include 200 kilometres on the house per day at most of our stations, we think you ll find our rates an even more pleasant surprise!

Renaldo Nehemiah, the brilliant University of Maryland sophomore, set a world indoor record for the second consecutive night, winning the 55-metre hurdles in 6.88 seconds at the U.S. invitational track and field meet Saturday night.

The 19-year-old Nehemiah, ranked No. 1 in the world, got off to a flying start and held the lead throughout in beating rival Greg Foster of rival Greg Foster of UCLA and the Muham-mad Ali Track Club. Foster was second in 7.09.

Friday night at Phila-delphia, Nehehmaih and Foster, rated No. 2 in the world, had finished in a deadheat for first in the 60-yard hurdles in 6.95

SCOTT SNAPS MEET RECORD

MOSCOW, Idaho - Canadian Debbie Scott and American Bob Maplestone provided highlights Saturday at the annual University of Idaho invitational indoor track and field meet.

Running for the University of Victoria, Scott posted a meet record time of 4:26,5 in winning the women's 1,500 metres event. Cathy Homer of Calgary placed second at 4:29.7 and Sara Neill of Washington came in third with 4:32.4.

Another Victorian, Debbie Campbell, was third in the women's 300 metres and Courtenay high school student Craig Taylor took second place in the men's long jump with his-best-ever indoor leap of 23 feet,

Among other Canadian contestants, Debbie Brill of Aldergrove won the women's high jump with a meet-record effort of six feet and Abbotsford's Colleen Gibson captured the women's 300 metres final in 39.2 seconds.

Maplestone sprinted past Henry Rono, the Ken-yan star who holds world records at longer distances, to win the featured mile run. Maplewood finished in 4:07.74 while Rono faded to sixth place at 4:11.50.

"I did not train for almost a month. I'm sorry I ran this way," Rono said.

"I told them early in the week I was not ready, but I felt I had to compete anyway. Tomorrow, I'll go out and run 20 miles, and next week, I'll be better.

In the 5,000-metre race Don Kandong of Spokane, an Olympic marathoner, was first at 14.26.1. Oregon Track Club member Kelly Jensen was second with 14.42.6. Peter Butler of Calgary was third.

Vikings boosted their conference-leading won-lost record to 9-1 in Vancouver Saturday with a 68-48 victory over UBC Thunderbirds.

Victoria's defence was extra tough for a third day's 89-48 victory over the straight game but Shields was particularly pleased with the way the Vikings avoided fouls.

It had been a problem Victoria's foul-taking, especially by key personnel, had jeopardized the Viking strategy in several games. To avoid early dips into hot-water situations, Shields put most of the emphasis in last week's practices on how to avoid fouls.

the 1953 VW Beetle ... the most laughed at car of the year!!!

When the VW Beetle first appeared on Canadian streets it was treated to a barrage of insults and laughter. Early VW buyers used to park their cars around the block to avoid the ribbing by their neighbours. There were a few people, however, who saw the potential of the VW, the advanced engineering, the efficient, practically indestructible rear engine. In fact, in many respects the VW beetle was 20 years ahead of anything else on the road. Bruce Passmore at Speedway Motors recognized the VW for what it was . . . a car whose time was about to come . . . and how right he was!!

and today at Speedway . .

the 1979 VW RABBIT ... one of the most honoured AND copied cars in recent years!

The VW Rabbit is probably one of the most copied cars in the world . . in styling and in many engineering principles . . . but there is only one VW Rabbit. The 1979 Rabbit is the end result of 25 years of research, a couple of billion miles of customer use and today is regarded as one of the world's finest cars in its class. In these days of higher maintenance costs, soaring gasoline costs and an uncertain economy, it is probably one of the best automotive buys in the country. And the 1979 Rabbit in either gas or diesel still delivers all the qualities that made the first VW's so popular. Efficiency, comfort, reliability are all part of Rabbit's success. Now, more than ever if simply makes sense to buy a VW Rabbit. At Speedway we have a full selection of 1979 Rabbits plus a very few 1978 Rabbits, both new and company driven demos . . . still at 1978 prices. This year more than ever YOU should be driving a Speedway Rabbit.

many players is that they don't think things through, and all too often they discover after a hand is over that they overlooked a comparatively simple bid or play. Consider this deal from a pair championship played in Los Angeles. The final con-tract at most tables was four hearts played by South, and at practically every table the declarer went down one against the ten of diamonds

ACROSS

Declarer covered the ten with the jack and took East's queen with the ace. After drawing three rounds of trumps, South returned the six of diamonds. West showed out and East, with two sure diamond tricks, won the six with the eight and shifted to a club. As a result, declarer lost a spade, two diamonds and a club to go down one At one table, however, de-clarer (Meyer Schleifer) made the contract. Exercising his eustomary wizardry, Schleifer ducked the ten of diamonds in dummy and also ducked East's eight! As a result of this extraordinary play, the contract could not be defeated. West could do no better than shift to a trump, and Schleifer drew three rounds of trumps before playing the ace and another diamond.

East won with the king and returned a club, but school was out. Schleifer took his ace, crossed to dummy with a diamond, dis-carded a club on the fifth diamond and lost a spade hearts

Ducking the ten of dia-monds is clearly the right play. West's lead is bound to be either a singleton or from the 10-8 doubleton. The double-duck is ingenious, but it offers the best chance to land the contract

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19):
Clear lines of communication, especially where family is concerned. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently. Long distance call could change current plan, policy. Be open-minded, not guilible. Money picture brightens—you get accolade, gift and cash.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):
Give full play to innate wisdom, shrewdness. Take nothing for granted: check sources, Accent on money associated with legal case, decision. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. You gain insight into question concerning investment, budget, legal loophole.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message. Emphasis on legalities, cooperative efforts, working arrangement with one whose views may oppose your own. Cancer, Sagilfarius, Capri-corn persons figure in scenario, You'll have more responsibility, prestige, authority and money.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):
Finish rather than begin — the loose ends, spread message, stand tall for accomplishment, principles. Aries, Libra — and the number 9 — figure prominently. You get vote of confidence from coworker. Individual you recently helped may now be able to return the favour.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stress independence, courage of convictions, getting to heart of matters.
New love could be on horizon.
Spotlight on speculation, children, affair of heart, change, variety, greater degree of self-expression.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What had been "hanging on" will be finished. You'll be free, more independent and creative. Hunch pays off — you regain sense of direction. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons play key roles. Older family member aids in resolving dilemma.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent movement, flexibility — be versatile, make inquiries. Give full rein to intellectual curiosity. You get what you ask for, so take special care in making requests. Relatives, short trips and selection of ideas, procedures — these are on agenda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on personal possessions, appraisals, defails connected with sales and purchases. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo persons could play key roles. You are challenged on views rebarding budget, money. You'll win if thorough.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Hope, optimism replace depression, You receive "strokes" from one who means much to you Scenario features exciting changes, creative outlets, new concerning fravel. You gain through written word. Know it and act accordingly.

nate. Taurus, Libra and the num-ber 6 figure prominently. You get an opportunity to test pet theory, significant progress possible if you are diplomatic. Funding will be available.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18).
Friendship, illusion, romantic moments are featured. Pisces, Virgo individuals figure in scenario.
Avoid self-deception. If doing a favour for sake of doing if, recognize if — don'd attribute business acumen or fax deduction or anything other than the facts.

PISCES (Feb. 19—March 20):
Get down to business — stick to facts, study Aquarius message. Older individuals proves a point. Instead of being resentful, be grateful. Emphasis on civic honor, reputation, duty, career, opening lines of communication with superior.

IF JANUARY 23 IS YOUR lines of communication with superior.

IF JANUARY 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are perceptive, active, unorthodox, have infectious laugh and opposite sex finds you very attractive. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. March and December could be your most important months of 1979, a year highlighting changes, travel, intensified relationship. If single, you could marry. If married, there might be an addition to your family. Married or single, you will be a part of an adventure, perhaps an investment program. You'll be alled with one who is willing to take a risk. You'll thrive and come alive.

Tot Snatched, Knifed Dead

DERBY, England (AP) — A "sadistic murderer" snatched a fair-haired, blue-eyed child from her front garden as she played in the snow and knifed her to death, police said Sunday.

"It was impossible to count the number of times she had been stabbed," said a Derby detective after Lorraine Holt's body had been found in a hunt by 100 policemen and 400 neighbors of the family.

Police said the three-year-old girl's body was found Sunday morning on the grounds of a disused vicarage 800 metres from her home in this midlands city. She disappeared Saturday afternoon, they said.

"We are looking for a sadistic murderer," said Chief of Detectives Eric Stoneley. He concluded the little girl must have been abducted because she had a foot deformity which kept her from walking far.

"I didn't force it; that's the way she looks," Scavullo said of Miss Cummins' alluring appearance in many of his photos. "Girls do look quite sexy at an early age. They know how to handle it."

ALDERWOOD MANOR, Wash. — Police in Alderwood Manor are perplexed by the disappearance of a woman who has written books on subjects ranging from reincarnation to what she termed the ability to project oneself into a former life through hypnosis.

Marcia Moore, 51, was reported missing early last Monday and officially is listed as a missing person. Her husband, Dr. Howard Alltounian, has been in contact with a number of psychics in the Seattle area and elsehwere in the United States, said Snohomish County

An unidentified Florida woman, who apparently is regarded as one of the top psychics in the United States, has relayed information that might indicate Ms. Moore is in Canada, Bemis said.

Ms. Moore is the author of several books on reincarnation, astrology, yoga and the ability to project oneself into a former life through hypnosis — a practice she calls "hyper-

Soviet's Signal Snuffed

MOSCOW (AP) - U.S. officials confirmed today that a weekend fire at a Russian apartment building has knocked out one of two Soviet transmitters beaming microwave radiation at the U.S. Embassy.

An electronic check today owed there was no detectable signal coming from the burned-out transmitter atop a 10-storey apartment build-ing across Tchaikovsky Street from the embassy, said the officials, who declined to be identified.

However, they said sophisticated monitors showed that a second transmitter south of the embassy was still operating.

Limited edition sunglasses have interchangeable lenses

Cheaters for the Elite

By ENID NEMY New York Times

The literature says that this new eye wear was designed to entice a special group of financially secure, demanding individuals. These individuals "feel for the unusual" and surround themselves with only the

That's what it says, and whether or not it's the best, the eyewear, created by Porsche Design, is, indeed, sleek, clean and contempo-rary, and may well turn out to be a new symbol of conspicuous status.

There are three designs in all, including sunglasses that are not only good-looking but offered in what the company says is a limited edition of 10,000. The purchaser fills out the card enclosed with each pair and sends it to Carrera International (the glasses come to us courtesy of Carrera-Porsche) and, presto, the glasses are officially regis-This doesn't mean that one family gets a replacement if the glasses are lost, but, as a representative of Carrera said, "I guess it gives the colors are available at colors are available at colors are available at colors are available at colors." feeling of oneness." The same representative said. too, that there was a possibility that a master list of owners would be compiled, and that each purchaser would receive a copy. At $90 a pair, it probably would be nice to know the company one was in. There are, of course, other features built into the $90. The style, a racy aviator, is in brushed chrome or black and has interchangeable hinged mechanism that easily releases, and secures, to protect against ultraviolet

The Sport Shield, which allows unobstructed vision and gives more protection than the sunglasses, has a scratch-resistant polarized shield, and an adjustable nose pad. It is also in chrome or black, and is priced at $65

Perhaps the most sophisti-cated, futuristic design is the Ski Goggle. It is said to be draft-free, the foam-co-vered ventilation system apparently prevents fogging, and the lenses are polarized and interchangeable.

There's an elasticized headband that wraps around the head and is secured by Velcro. The band is wide enough to keep the ears warm, and when not in use, acts as carrying case to keep the lenses from scratching. The two lenses supplied here are gray and a yellow green, and the price tag reads $55.

By PAULINE GRAVES

Upgrading a house with paint and paper or molding it to individual taste comes as naturally as replacing drapes. But seldom is furniture worked on except to refinish an antique or second-hand piece or to replace worn upholstery. Viewed objectively, chairs and tables offer as many opportunities for imaginative changes as does a house. Bright colors instead of wood finishes bring life into a dull room and because they are unexpected, add excitement to a routine scheme. Another approach is pictured here, in a room by interior designer Beverly Trupp. Fabric covers a small scale Parsons table and the mirror frame top, providing a hard surface conducive to writing. Because the so-called soft look dominates furni ture news these days, table legs and mirror frame are upholstered, that is, padded. Inch-thick foam rubber covers the legs, and the fabric then wrapped tightly around. The process is the same for the frame except for the thickness of the rubber which initially is four inches but which becomes thinnner as the fabric is pulled taut, and stapled securely on the back

The experiment is described in an article scheduled for the Jan. 19 issue of the journal Science.
The endorphins, discovered five years ago, are natural brain substances which have an effect very much like morphine but are less addictive and pose fewer dangerous side effects.

Neithold underwent surgery to implant a tiny elec-trode in his brain and a half-dellar-sized receiver in his chest. Two tiny wires con-nect them, and he uses his external transmitter to trigger the brain to produce belts of endorphin about three times a day. The hormone blocks incoming pain signals.

The procedure was developed by Dr. Yoshio Hosobuchi, a brain surgeon at the University of California Medical School here, in collaboration with 1977 Nobel Prize-winner Roger Guillemin, Jean Rossier and Floyd E. Bloom of the Salk Insti-tute in La Jolla.

A 15-minute self-stimulation can relieve pain for a few hours to several days.

A major problem has been infection because the first stage of surgery involves leaving wires sticking outside the head after the electrode is implanted, to ensure it works properly before the chest implant. One patient died of severe brain infection, Hosobuchi said.

Another problem is that patients develop a tolerance to the process, but this can be overcome by eating three to five grams a day of a dietary supplement called

Hosobuchi said a similar surgical implant procedure chi said the procedure "is can relieve pain for persons not a panacea . . it is a very complicated method."

face was turned to the side.
At first I though I might have had a stroke. Then the doctor told me it was a paralysis of the face. Can you explan how this kind of thing can happen so suddenly? — MR. N.P.

DEAR MR. P.:

There are 12 important nerves which lead from the brain and are responsible for many important func-tionings of the major organs of the body. Some of these cranial nerves carry sensa-tions to the brain; others are responsible for messages from the brain to various muscles of the body.

The seventh of these nerves is known as the "facial nerve" and is respon-sible for the movement of the muscles of the face, lips, eyelids and forehead. When this nerve is injured, inflamed or irritated, a paralysis of the muscle fol-

Facial paralysis is also known as "Bell's palsy" which is named after the doctor who first described it many years ago.

The condition is a form of neuritis, which may be caused by a viral infection or an injury. Exposure to persistent draft while driving may be responsible. The been made that the left side of the face is more often affected in America, while in Great Britain the right side is more commonly affected. It is believed that the difference in the position of the driver's seat must be a factor.

Sometimes, during the course of extensive mastoid surgery, the facial nerve can be injured.

About 80 per cent of all cases of Bell's palsy recover

Dear Mrs. L.

A brownish discoloration occasionally occurs on the cheeks of women during pregnancy. This is known as "chloasma." It is thought to be caused by some porary hormone imbalance. Almost always, this discoloration disappears.

Selfish. . . ? Yes and No

MONTREAL (CP) — Are Canadians crabby, negative and selfish? Yes, according to most of the callers to a national radio call-in show Sunday.

But new Canadians who phoned CBC's Cross-Country Checkup seemed to disagree with that opinion, held mostly by those born here, moderator Wayne Grigsby noted.

One 85-year-old listener from Vernon, B.C. said he came here in 1911 with $5 in his pocket, got a job, bought some land and last week celebrated his 60th wedding anniversary. "Canadians are the nicest, most decent people in any county in the world," he said.

An Ottawa woman said Canadians aren't selfish or crabby but they are negative. "We don't have enough pride in what we've achieved. We lack self confidence," she commented commented.

A man from Grande Prairie, Alta. said people in some areas might be suspicious of other regions of the country, but "here they're not."

Commenting on the selfishness of Canadians, a Montreal caller said that Canadians have a lot of money in the bank but do nothing with it.

Many callers said they have become prouder of the country since they travelled abroad.

Pluto's Orbit Swings Inside Neptune's

For nearly 40 years, students have been learning that Pluto is the planet most distant from the sun. Starting today, that will no longer

And that will remain the case until March 14, 1999, when the orbits of the two cross again and Pluto regains its last-place ranking.
Since Pluto was only discovered in 1930 by Clyde Tombaugh at the Lowell Observatory, this is the first time scientists will actually be aware of it moving inside

However, they have calculated that this event takes place every 248 years, meaning that it last happened in 1731 and before that in 1483, 1235 and so forth, remaining inside the orbit of Neptune each time for 20 and a mass about one-eighth that of the earth's moon. Scientists believe the surface of Pluto is covered with frozen methane. They surmise that the planet is a ball of ice with water, methane Neptune each time for 20

The Naval Observatory reports that Pluto actually crossed Neptune's orbit last November, but since the two planets do not have circular the sun than Neptune until today. The time when this will occur cannot be calcu-although the paths of the planets cross, there is no reason for alarm. They will never collide, the observatory added. Their orbits are so inclined that Pluto and Neptune can come no closer than about 384 million kilothan about 384 million kilometres to one another.

Only last year, scientists studying photographs of Pluto discovered that it appears to have a large satellite which would be visible only from one side of the planet. This moon has been named Charon.

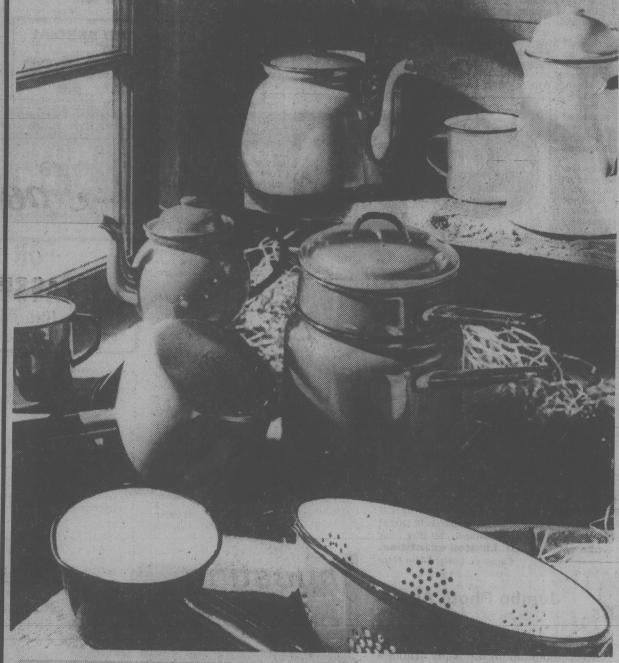

Besides being most distant—most of the time—Pluto is also the smallest known planet, with a diameter of about 3,000 kilometres

Neptune, also with a large moon, was "discovered" in 1846, although it had been seen before that and mistaken for a star.

Among the sharpest cuts are 160,000 public service jobs for a savings of $535 million. Some trimming of social security programs is proposed to reduce outlays $600 million in 1980 and $1.7 billion in 1981.

The budget, which totals $531.6 billion, sets aside $2.5 billion to be paid to workers as inflation insurance, if Congress approves. There would be a 1980 deficit of $29 billion, down from $37.4 billion this year.

Carter said the budget, which is for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, emphasizes spending restraint and fighting inflation and makes the federal dollar work harder and better.

Budget spending in 1979 is estimated at $493.4 billion. Revenues, including tax receipts, are projected at $502.6 billion in 1980—up from $456 billion this year.

At the same time, the budget holds out the possibility of a new round of tax reductions in 1981 - possibly including a rollback in social security taxes.

Congress, which has its own budget-making proce-dures, may make substantial changes in the adminis tration's spending proposals before finally approving a

But there have been some spectacular successes during the 1970s, Small said.

There was the national publicity when Victoria, back in 1972, was the first chamber to publicly advocate wage and price controls. With a large retirement popula-tion, this city more than others was aware of the dangers of inflation for people on

The Victoria proposal was front page news across Canada and it started a national debate that finally resulted in a wage and price controls program.

The biggest success locally was winning the prestigious Lester Pearson College of the Pacific.

The chamber noted a news item that land had been purchased at Yellowpoint, near Nanaimo, for a world college and immediately local businessmen sprang into action to persuade college officials to build here instead.

Push led to Empress

In 1903 the Victoria chamber began a campaign to get the CPR to construct a major hotel here. The famed Empress was constructed five years later.

But Small rates 1960-61 as the chamber's finest hour.

Fruit of the Sea: The Winter Oyster

About this time in the winter, we begin to watch for signs that spring is a meahorizon. One of these intimations is a daytime low tide. The saltchuck, which since late October has receded from the beaches only at night, ebbs away from the drift-log line. Flats that have not been exposed for months to sunlight lie wetly

When that happens, Win and I drop whatever engages us, stow rubber boots and a bucket in our car, and set out to look for one of nature's tastiest gifts to man. This is the winter oyster.

Through most of the year, any oyster is a worthy bivalve, whether slurped off the half shell, stewed or fried with butter and breadcrusts. From July through September — a shorter span spawn bloated oyster is har-vested only by the undiscriminating tourist. But when ite oyster flat on a grey day two-person limit.

It was still winter, never fear, and in our bucket was winter's choicest gift. Fruit of the sea, the poetic-mind-ed French call shellfish. As applied to the winter oyster, the term is deserved.

We lugged our trove home. Unlike the clam, the oyster requires no scouring of its innards in a salt-water bath. Its serrated shell guards its bracing juices jealously until the blade of an oyster knife picks the lock.

Shucking oysters is a job best done outdoors. I opened , leaving a dozen of the smaller ones on the half-shell for a pre-dinner cocktail to be served with a sauce into which goes kechup, horse-radish, lemon juice, pepper and the merest whiff of salt. These cocktail oysters I ranged on the fish-shaped

First we had our winter oyster cocktail, in our liv-ing-room with fir-bark chunks glowing in our fire-place. Those oysters, each ubricated by an application of tangy sauce, were sheer
